

Marie-Louise Rosholm, Textile consultant

M contact@studio-mlr.com T+45 2030 2218 www.studio-mlr.com

SERVICES for possible practical solution concerning the green transition.

Look at the EU's measures as a gift, not as a mountain that can be difficult to break down.

"I am a practitioner. I absorb knowledge by working with materials and processes, and in collaboration with people having different skills than mine. Development takes place in that field. Practitioners develop the future, afterwards it becomes academic" Marie-Louise Rosholm / MLR

My knowledge about fibres and materials as well as know-how about the production of textiles – woven, non-woven, knit and warp knit, print and embroidery is practical and empirical. In addition, I have a long experience in collaboration with textile technicians/engineers and designers within interior and fashion. A knowledge of how this world works and how to make everyone satisfied with both the process and the result – despite change

You can easily become blind at home. A 360° vision of your company could include:

- Analysis of the company's situation – as a whole or selected areas.
- Ideas or idea catalogue for what you can do and the achieved effect
- Down-to-earth guidance and sparring for implementation

I provide fresh eyes and broad experience from sustainable context, knowledge, industry, trend research as well as design method plus good portion of common sense! With these tools, I can analyse where it is obvious for you to start the green transition. After having selected the needed measures, impact and costs are carefully assessed.

A simple grip, as an introduction to the journey:

I provide a clear overview of what it takes to think and act sustainably. If you want we can implement this knowledge in your own design- and developing process together, we can go through the processes, from a hands-on aspect of course.

How will this affect our product or services?

Together we go through your products – a few of them or them all – discussing how they can be improved to meet a sustainable EU request and the vision you want to show to your customers and the world. We will also address the cost aspect of the new sustainable products. If you need it, I'll be happy helping you through the work of the first or more items.

Workshop and dialogue:

A general dialogue about what a change could be for you. When you have digested the first information load, we meet again for questions and dialogue about how you approach the green transition.

The above services are just ideas of what could be a service. The services are always tailored to your needs – you want to start small, we start small.